Modern High-Power Artillery Demands Peculiar Powder.

Nations Have Various Ways of Making the Compound in the Style They Favor—Gunpowder Almost Pure Cotton.

The lady who asked at the country store for "powder" was met with the polite query, "Face, gun or dust?" The first and third varieties are still what they were of yore, but gunpowder is really powder no longer, except when it is used for the manufacture of fireworks.

That used for the modern high-power artillery is in the form of cylinders, sticks, or blocks, some of them of considerable size.

A single grain of the powder, for instance, for the great 16-inch gun to be set up at Panama is as big round as a broomstick and three inches long. Germans make their powder in strips that look like thick tape. They cut it off in lengths and tie it up in bundles which fit into the breeches of their big guns.

The British powder is made in long sticks which look like macaroni without the large single hole, while the French powder looks like flat pieces of chewing gum.

The bigger the gun the bigger the grain of powder. For the rifles the men carry the grains are half as big as a pinhead, for the largest guns they are three inches long and three-quarters of an inch thick. Every grain is perforated lengthwise. Small grains have a single hole, while the larger sizes have seven.

These holes regulate in a wonderful way the rapidity with which the powder will burn. If you light a scrap of paper all round the edges it will burn

Enjoying Life in Trenches.

A soldier writes back: "Life in the trenches is fairly enjoyable if you know how to appreciate it."

"Yes, indeed, life is worth while anywhere, if you make the best of it. The trenches offer peculiar opportunities for enjoying life. Living from minute to minute is intense, constant living, replete with satisfaction. Every minute is as precious as though it was going to be the last. And the value of contrast heightens the rest for breathing. Just to be alive to keep joy in the trenches, surpassed only by the joy of being remote from the trenches."

Since the days of the Lewis and Clark expedition to the section of the country now known as the states of Washington and Oregon, the Celilo stretch has been known as the most difficult piece of water on the Columbia river. The completion of the Celilo canal, which was opened May 2, clears a steamer lane from Astoria to Lewiston on the Snake river. Construction work on the canal, which cost $5,000,000, was begun in October, 1908. It has a minimum depth of eight feet with ten passing basins and five locks, overcoming a total fall of 82 feet at low water and 64 feet at the high stage of the river. The photograph shows a view near the upper end of Celilo canal.

ALMOST MADE HIM MISS IT

Of Course Wife Was to Blame Because Opportunity Nearly Got Away From the Man.

Opportunity knocked twice at the man's door and was about to knock a third time when the door was hurriedly opened by a woman.

"Where is the man?" said Opportunity. "Come! I've no time to lose."

"You're the very one he's looking for," said the woman. "But he's occupied."

"You're his wife, aren't you. Tell him to come."

"He won't believe me. He'll think I'm mistaken. He'll think you are someone else."

"Oh, please don't go. I'll tell him. I'll try to convince him who you are. Give me a little time."

"That isn't my fault. I've done my duty. Good-day."

Just at this moment the man rushed out and grabbed Opportunity. Then he turned roughly to his wife.

"Why didn't you let me know she was knocking?" he said. "Why, she almost got away. Just like you!"—Life.

DOG HERO SAVES LITTLE GIRL.

Little Elsie Perry, daughter of C. L. Perry of Wilson, N. C., was saved from the fangs of a rabid dog by the property of Mr. Perry, and the constant playmate of little Elsie.

While playing in front of her home the little girl was attacked by a large dog, which came running down the street. Her playmate, much smaller than the attacking dog, threw himself on it and battled grimly, until the little girl escaped into the house. The canine hero was terribly bitten in the encounter, and when it was learned that the strange dog had rabies the hero had to be shot, as physicians said it was certain he would go mad. He was buried with the highest honors.

Jobless Turn to Gold Mining.

How to provide for the army of the unemployed, thrown out of work because of the business depression resulting from the European war, is naturally a much more serious problem in the British colonies than anywhere else outside of the continent of Europe. The city of Edmonton, Canada, has found at least a partial solution, and one that puts no added burden on either the taxpayer or the charitable. The bars of the Saskatchewan river, which runs through the city, contain much gold dust of the very fine hour variety. With the outbreak of the European war and the necessity to provide as much available work for men whom war conditions might throw out of employment, the city council turned to the gold-mining industry, which offered returns right within a hundred yards of the city's main streets. A number of experienced mining men who had settled in the city after the Klondike rush of '98 offered to act for a while as instructors to the uninitiated, and some 500 men soon went to work. The average cleanup per man for the months of August and September was about $1.50 to $2 a day.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Her Objection.

"So Maude has come back from the front as a Red Cross nurse?"

"Yes, indeed. She said if she did all the horrid things they wanted her to do, she would have been a perfect sight whenever the photographers for the papers came around. So she quit."

Just That.

"That fellow certainly can make a great speech."

"That so? Then why doesn't he?"

Heard on the Train.

"Do you play poker?"

"No; I need all the money I've got."

His Bid.

Between the blonde young woman on the other side of the car and her stout neighbor next to the left there intervened a space of perhaps four inches in width. Clinging to the strap just in front of the blonde young woman was a cheerful individual whose uncertain footing was, it seemed, not wholly due to the jolting and jerking of the common carrier. Presently he fastened an ingratiating smile upon the young woman.

"Madam," he murmured, "if you'd lemme sit down in that placid there by you, I'd vote for woman shuffrage."

JUST A SIMPLE QUESTION

And if Man Had Waited He Surely Would Have Had an Answer. But He Didn't.

"Mrs. Stimpson, I am a plain, blunt-spoken man."

"Yes, I know, Mr. Tarter."

"I never beat around the bush. When I got ready to ask my first wife for her heart and hand I did not waste five minutes in coming to the point."

"Oh, Mr. Tarter, but don't be too sudden! You know our set."

"Mrs. Stimpson, I have called this evening to ask you a question."

"Yes; but—but—"

"And I want a plain, plump answer—either 'Yes' or 'No.'"

"It's awfully sudden, Mr. Tarter, but I'll try to—to—"

"I have known you three months."

"Yes."

"I don't think I'm mistaken in your character."

"Oh, Mr. Tarter!"

"Now, then, I am to be married to Jennie Jackson tomorrow. Do you want a position as housekeeper?"

When she revived and sat up he had vanished, and, though she reached out with her fingers for his hair, she clutched nothing but emptiness.
